

Annelies graduated in 2017 as a Vet for companion animals at the University of Ghent. After her graduation, she immediately started a rotating internship during one year also at the University. After that she combined her love for traveling and animal health by volunteering in Thailand. After returning to Belgium, she once more joined the university of Ghent, but this time as a Vet at the ICU department. She also participated in an Emergency and Critical Care and Anesthesia program via ESAVS at the University of Luxembourg and recently did a specialized internship in ECC at the University of Liege. In the near future, she plans to start her residency in ECC.