

Nurse handovers:

Nurses and technicians play a vital role in the transfer of patient information between shift changeovers. In human healthcare setting, structured handovers in the format of checklists such as ISBAR have been implemented when transferring patients between different ward areas and shift changes. This session will take a closer look at how the nursing team can work towards standardising their patient handover in order to maximise effective transfer of information.