

Nursing the Seizing Cat

In this lecture, we will learn about nursing the seizing cat, reasons why they may present and medications that are commonly used to stabilise these patients. Cats are not small dogs and have their own particular considerations. Some of the learning objectives for this lecture are listed below.

- Recognise seizure behaviour in felines
- List the common medications used to stabilise these patients
- Understand the nursing considerations for these patients
- Identify the common causes of epilepsy in cats
- Describe the basics of how seizures affect the brain

Toxicosis in Practice - Name Your Poison

In this lecture, we will discuss common intoxications that present to the veterinary practice; this will be specifically aimed at toxicosis in dogs and cats. We will discuss how these patients may present and how they are typically treated. Some of the learning objectives for this lecture are listed below.

- List the common intoxications in small animal practice
- Identify current treatment for those toxicities
- Understand the nursing considerations for these patients
- Recognise complications that may occur